Army CID Mission

Army CID conducts felony-level investigations and operations, while providing criminal intelligence to proactively prevent crimes which impact the operational readiness of the Army. CID investigates felony crimes of serious, sensitive, or special interest matters to support and preserve the Army's resources in peacetime, combat, and contingency operations. Army CID also conducts worldwide investigations of classified Army programs and sensitive activities; acquisition and procurement fraud affecting Army programs, systems, major construction and Soldier safety; cyber intrusions, related malicious activities, and insider threats involving U.S. Army networks; and terrorism activities.

WHO WE ARE

Army CID is an independent Federal Law Enforcement Agency that employs approximately 2,900 personnel, to include some 1,500 civilian and military, credentialed federal Special Agents. CID directly supports the Army worldwide, through its protective services for High Risk Personnel; as well as its expeditionary capability to support wartime requirements. The agency is led by a civilian Director who is a law enforcement professional who reports directly to the Secretary of the Army via the Under Secretary of the Army.
